KABBALAT SHABBAT

Friday August 11th at 7:00 pm

An Uplifting Service of Music and Song

Rabbi Allen will be joined on the bima
by world-class violinist Zoriy Zinger for a warm, joyous, and festive
Shabbat Service

When Rabbi Allen plays her keyboard along with Mr. Zinger on his violin, they transform the traditional Friday night service into a musical celebration of the Jewish Spirit, creating an atmosphere filled with the emotional and spiritual sounds of our beautiful prayers.

Mr. Zinger was a soloist in the Russian Symphony Orchestra before reaching fame in America. He has performed at Lincoln Center, programs on television, and stage shows with popular musical artists including Ray Charles and Ricky Martin. Rabbi Allen and Mr. Zinger have collaborated in numerous venues, including several wonderful concerts for Congregation Beth Sholom.

Please invite your friends and neighbors to join us for this uniquely spiritual form of the usual Friday night service, beautifully enhanced with musical instruments and song.

Rabbi's Message

“When the dog bites – when the bee stings . . . I simply remember my favorite things . . .” – The Sound of Music

From our Kabbalat Shabbat service through Sukkot, this is a season filled with so many of my favorite things.

I am deeply grateful to Congregation Beth Sholom for giving me the opportunity to combine my seemingly disparate loves of music and rabbinic scholarship into a professional and spiritual life that has been little short of paradise.

When I hoped to introduce to the congregation my musical arrangements of our Friday evening service, featuring Zoriy Zinger's violin mastery, you said – welcome, Zoriy!

When I yearned to share with our members and friends my passion for Eretz Yisraeil, you said – let's go!

When I longed to offer to everyone the opportunity to shake the lulav and etrog in our own sufficiently large sukkah, you have provided it, built and decorated it each year, and all have joined in.

You sing along with the Shabbat and High Holiday melodies as beautifully as many of the professional synagogue choirs with which I have chanted them.

And, most meaningful of all, you are a warm, welcoming home to all who participate in any and every program of Congregation Beth Sholom, from the sacred to the social, from education to administration.

In particular, I am proud that in our relationships we do not differentiate among human beings – whether long-time members or first-time visitors, Jews by birth, those choosing Judaism later in life, or others, all are welcome, and our goal is to make sure that everyone feels at home here.

Congregation Beth Sholom has long been known as The Synagogue that Feels like Family. Thank you for being such a wonderful and loving family to me. I wish each of you a healthy, joy-filled season, culminating in a shanah tovah u'mtukah

– with love and blessings – Rabbi Karen Allen. 386-676-5157

The President's Message

I love being part of the process of bringing people together, whether it is organizing family reunions, or helping to plan our wonderful synagogue functions.

When I first moved to Florida, I found out that 3 of my first cousins are all in Florida between January and March. I organized a cousin's lunch where I got together with the three of them. The following year, the lunch was scheduled when my sister visited me. Our lunch has become an annual event. This summer, knowing that John and I would be in NJ, we organized a lunch with my sister and another group of cousins who live in NJ and PA. We will get together with 4 first cousins, 3 of whom we haven't seen for over 10 years. I am really looking forward to this cousins' reunion.

I am also looking forward to many upcoming events with my synagogue family.

Each year when I put the notice of the Kabbalat Shabbat on the cover of the Shofar, it puts me in a special mood, looking forward to the beautiful sounds of Zoriy's violin in combination with Rabbi Allen's keyboard. Listening to our prayers played on their instruments brings tears to my eyes as my soul is lifted a little closer to the heavens. Please tell your friends about this very special service. It is a wonderful time for people to get to meet us.

I am looking forward to having fun and socializing with our members at our second Social Sunday on August 20 (see page 3) and at other social events throughout the coming year. Thanks to Dee Marcus for volunteering to run our social events.

Each year, when I type up the High Holiday Schedule, I immediately start thinking about how many people make our shul their spiritual home during the holidays. I love sharing the holidays with all of our members and guests, whether I see you throughout the year or only at the holidays. I'm so glad that we have room for people who are looking for a place to worship on the holidays.

How nice that I get to look forward to sharing special times with both my relatives and my spiritual family.

As I am looking forward to sharing some of these events with you, I hope that you are also looking forward to spending time with us, The Synagogue That Feels Like Family.

Shalom,

Linda

Fred & Helen Jacobs
Sabbath Service at Congregation B'nai Israel
Saturday, May 6, 2017, San Jose, Costa Rica

This past December, the president of Leesburg, FL Congregation Beth Sholom, FL, Linda Kost, received a telephone call from a fellow in Costa Rica – Norman Siegel. Norman and his wife, Frankie, were ex-pats in Costa Rica for about 5 years and were now looking to return to the United States. They knew that they wanted to go to Florida but were unsure as to where – just that there be a good number of Jewish families and synagogues. So, finding our website on Google, he telephoned Linda.

Linda knew that I often travelled to Costa Rica and that I might still be there. Unsure, I received an email with the subject, “r u home?” Well, I had already returned, but I contacted Norman. Through the exchange of emails, we got to know one another a bit and then I received an email asking when I would return to Costa Rica and could we meet. The timing was perfect – my wife, Helen, and I were leaving for Costa Rica in a few weeks.

Two weeks later we arrived in San Jose and I contacted Norman. He asked if we would like to accompany them at services on Saturday. He advised that the services were in Spanish on Friday – except for the last Friday of the month when services were in English. Saturday services were usually in English, except that this Saturday, the Rabbi was on vacation and the services would be led by a member of the congregation – mostly in Spanish.

The first Jewish settlers in Costa Rica were “Conversos” who fled the Spanish Inquisition. Through assimilation, hardly a trace of this group remains. Currently, there are about 3 thousand Jews in Costa Rica — at least half of whom came before and immediately after World War II. Coming from two Polish towns, about 50 miles from Warsaw, helps to explain the community is primarily orthodox. The Jewish community is centered in San Jose.

There are four synagogues in San Jose, the largest of which is Shaarei Zion, an Ashkenanzi Orthodox Synagogue and administrator of the Orthodox Cemetery; Chabad Lubavitch (Hassidic); B'nai Israel (Reformed) and Bet Midrash Morasha (Sephardic Orthodox). There are kosher butchers, a schochet – a ritual slaughterer, restaurants (delicatessens and a kosher Burger King) and kosher products available in larger supermarkets.

It's now Saturday and Norman advises us to take Uber car service to Calle 90 – you can't miss the shul – it's a white building on the corner with Jewish Stars in the windows! I look up Google maps to get an idea as to where Calle 90 is (pronounced “kahyea” – “street” in Spanish) and Google finds it right away. It is only a 10 minute ride from our hotel, it's only two blocks long and the Google Earth View shows a large white building at the end of the street. We called for a Uber pick-up and the driver shows me his cell phone map and he is going to the same place that I found.

We get to the street and drive up to the large white building. It seems closed but we get out and walk around the corner where there seems to be an entrance only to find that the entrance is to a family's home. There is a family in the front yard that must have just arrived home as a young man is closing the entrance gate. I approached the young man and asked if he knew about Congregation B'nai Israel and showed him pictures of the building on my cell phone. He informed us that it was not in this area and he did not know where it was.

By this time the Uber driver had left. We were two stranded souls in the middle of who knows where. The look on our faces must have said something to the family because the young man's mother came over to see if she could help. She asked us for the name of the synagogue and found it on Google. She telephoned to find out where it was located. At the same time, I telephoned Norman and asked where he was. He said that he was at Calle 90 and waiting for us. I told him that we were at Calle 90 and he was nowhere in sight nor was the shul. He then asked me if I was with someone who was talking to someone at the shul. I told him that I was and at that moment the young man came over and told us that his mother knew where it was and that they would drive us there. The family of 3 and Helen and I all packed ourselves into a pick-up truck and drove over. There was, in fact, a continuation of Calle 90, also only two blocks long, on the other side of a major road that bisected Calle 90. Along the way, the mother said to Helen, “You must be good people. Angels are watching over you.” Helen replied, “Yes, you are an angel.”

When we arrived at the shul, Norman was waiting outside and had a broad smile on his face. As I stepped out of the truck, I said, “Doctor Livingstone, I presume?” We entered the 2-story building only to find out that the second floor was actually a balcony with an office for the Rabbi. The sanctuary had a 2-story ceiling. Seats were arranged on a horseshoe pattern leaving an open area in the front of the bimah. Norman had told us that this was “progressive” synagogue and we were fully expecting to witness a Reformed service.

Norman told us that, since the 1992 and 1994 synagogue bombings in Argentina, membership in any of the synagogues required careful vetting – a letter from your Rabbi at home, a copy of your passport, a meeting with the Rabbi, etc. It was impossible to gain entrance to attend a service without someone to vouch for you.

I immediately noticed that none of the older men wore the short tallis around their necks but, instead, wore the long tallis that flowed over their shoulders and covered their back. The traditional small tallis was worn by the young men in the congregation. Each of the women wore a similar tallis albeit in more feminine colors. As I looked around the room, I saw that Norman and his wife, Frankie, Helen and I and one other man were the only Americans. The rest of the assemblage was made of men and women of various tones of brown. I was told that most of the women were converted to Judaism.

As we made our way around the synagogue, people came up to welcome us. Here we are, 1300 miles from home, in a country where we don't speak the language and never feeling alone or distant. Is this the way Costa Ricans are by nature or were we welcomed because we are Jewish? My answer is an emphatic BOTH, especially based on the events getting to the synagogue. Primarily though, it was because we are Jewish and, to quote from our history, strangers in a foreign land. Helen and I have attended Bar-Mitvahs for her grand-nephews in France and I attended Kol Nidre services in Tokyo. We are welcomed as though we are the prodigal children returning to the family. And, the conversation is always the same – where are you from...are there many Jews...what is your synagogue like...what is your Rabbi like? After you get these basic questions out of the way, the conversation roams in every direction.

I read through the program for the service and saw names such as Yaakov Rodriguez, Alejandro Lev and Shmuel Perez among many others. We also met Phil Gelman, the other American, who was from New York City and also a past-president of the Congregation.

At this point, a young woman approached a chair that was located on the floor directly in front of the bimah and called the service to order. The prayer book seemed to be modeled after the Gates of Prayer (the Amidah included the matriarchs) but was quite unique in form. The siddur was written and published by the congregation and was tri-lingual – Hebrew, Spanish and English – as well as transliteration for some of the Hebrew prayers. Congregation B'nei Israel positions itself as the only tri-lingual synagogue in Costa Rica – and for all I know, possibly the world.

When it came time for the Torah service, another young woman took the seat and directed a reading of the translation of the week's Parsha: Kedoshim. Some read it in English but most were in Spanish. After the reading, she read what she had written about her understanding of the Parsha. This was followed by an open discussion of the Parsha among the congregation – unfortunately for me, mostly in Spanish. I wish that I understood the discussion because some of the speakers were addressing the group with great emotion and at length. This discussion lasted about an hour and was followed by taking out the Torah and calling congregants for an Aliyah. Rather than have a single person read the Torah, each person sang his/her portion directly from the Torah. I later learned that they are trained by the Rabbi to read and sing the Parsha during a weekly class. Listening to the chanting of the Parsha sections, I became aware of the slightly different accents the people have. The accents made me aware of the vast differences of people and what binds us together as Jews – faith and belief in a single G-d, history and traditions. These attributes allow us to walk into any synagogue in the world, listen to what is being said or hear the melody of a particular prayer and immediately be able to pick up a siddur and find the page where the congregation is in the service.

Near the closing of the service, Helen and I stood to say Kaddish on her father's yahrzeit. While only one other person was standing, all eyes seemed to be on us. At the conclusion of the service, people came over and said, "How fortunate that we were here for you to be able to say Kaddish." What a warm thing to say. Far better than hearing that the only reason we may have come was to say Kaddish. Just goes to prove, once more, that it is the community and not the individual.

Everyone gathered in a small room for Kiddish. There was a table with food and cake in the center and everyone moved to encircle the table. Manischewitz Concord Grape wine and Welch's Grape juice was handed out and a congregant said the blessing for wine. Then, two challahs were uncovered and as the HaMotzi was about to be said, the entire congregation placed their right hand on the shoulder of the person on their right. I have no idea what the source of this tradition is or the meaning. To me, however, it was joining everyone present into a single unit and closing the circle of community.

After an hour or so of socializing, the group started to head to their homes. One man came over and asked where we were staying and how we were getting there. I told him the name of the hotel and about Uber and he said, "Wait. I'll get you a ride." He did and we did.

My take away from this adventure is that a Jew is a Jew no matter where he goes. I can walk into any synagogue in the world and begin to pray with people who may look different or have an accent and know that, in a short time I will cease to be a stranger in a foreign land.

EXPLANATION OF DATES ON YAHRZEIT LIST

We give our members the option to observe yahrzeit on the secular date (the actual date of passing) or the Hebrew date. If there is no Hebrew date next to a name, it is because their family prefers to observe yahrzeit on the secular calendar date.

To add a loved one to the yahrzeit list, contact Linda Kost and provide the names and relationship of the congregant and relative, and the actual date of passing including the year. Please indicate whether you wish to observe yahrzeit on the secular or Jewish date. Contact Linda at president-at-bethsholomflorida.org (replace –at– with @) or 352-315-0309
